DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Claims 1-10 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b), as being drawn to a nonelected group I, there being no allowable generic or linking claim.

Applicant timely traversed the restriction (election) requirement in the reply filed on June 12, 2006.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 11-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tanaka et al (US 2004/0244879).

Tanaka teaches a tungsten alloy wire with 1-10% rhenium (abstract) and potassium [0024], said alloy having high tensile strength properties [0022] and large ductility after heat treating [0010], thereby providing a wire with excellent durability even when used at high temperatures. Tanaka does not mention the room temperature TS/hot TS ratio. However, because Tanaka teaches an overlapping alloy composition, processed in a similar method of working and heat treating, then substantially the same properties, such as cold TS, hot TS, and ratio CTS/HTS, are expected to occur. Therefore, it is held that Tanaka has created a prima facie case of obviousness of the presently claimed invention.

Art Unit: 1742

The examiner asserts that where the claimed and prior art products are identical or substantially identical in structure or composition, or are produced by identical or substantially identical processes, a prima facie case of either anticipation or obviousness has been established. In re Best, 562 F.2d 1252, 1255, 195 USPQ 430, 433 (CCPA 1977). “When the PTO shows a sound basis for believing that the products of the applicant and the prior art are the same, the applicant has the burden of showing that they are not.” In re Spada, 911 F.2d 705, 709, 15 USPQ2d 1655, 1658 (Fed. Cir. 1990). Therefore, if the prior art teaches the identical chemical structure, the properties applicant discloses and/or claims are necessarily present. The prima facie case can be rebutted by evidence showing that the prior art products do not necessarily possess the characteristics of the claimed product. In re Best, 562 F.2d at 1255, 195 USPQ at 433. See also Titanium Metals Corp. v. Banner, 778 F.2d 775, 227 USPQ 773 (Fed. Cir. 1985), see MPEP 2112.01.

Concerning claims 12-13, as stated above, tanaka teaches an overlapping alloy composition, processed in a similar method of working and heat treating, then substantially the same properties, such as cold TS, hot TS, and ratio CTS/HTS, are expected to occur.

Concerning claim 13, Tanaka teaches forming said alloy into a coil (Fig. 9, etc). Concerning the presently claimed mandrel ratio, it is well settled that a product-by-process claim defines a product, and that when the prior art discloses a product substantially the same as that being claimed, differing only in the manner by which it is made, the burden falls to applicant to show that any process steps associated therewith result in a product materially different from that disclosed in the prior art. See MPEP 2113, In re Brown (173 USPQ 685) and In re Fessman (180 USPQ 524) In re Thorpe, 777 F.2d 695, 698, 227 USPQ 964, 966 (Fed. Cir. 1985). Once the examiner provides a rationale tending to show that the claimed product appears to be the same or similar to that of the prior art, although produced by a different process, the burden shifts to applicant to come forward with evidence establishing an unobvious difference between the claimed product and the prior art product. In re Marosi, 710 F.2d 798, 802, 218 USPQ 289, 292.

Concerning claims 15 and 16, Tanaka teaches an overlapping alloy composition.
